

For Immediate Release

November 7, 2006

FWBBC Presents ‘Christmas on Richland’

NASHVILLE, TN—Free Will Baptist Bible College will present its annual “Christmas on Richland” event Friday, December 1 at 7:30 p.m. in Memorial Auditorium, according to Dr. James Stevens, chairman of the Music Department. This year the 35-voice Choral Union and orchestra will perform the Christmas portion of Handel’s “Messiah.”

Admission to “Christmas on Richland” is free. The public is invited to join with the Free Will Baptist Bible College family of students, faculty, and staff for the annual concert

The 90-minute musical presentation will be under the direction of David Hahn, adjunct faculty member of conducting, music history, and voice. Mr. Hahn received his master’s degree in music history from Temple University. He has been a violinist with the Nashville Philharmonic since 2004, and is both a freelance musician and a published composer of sacred music.

Every year, as part of the Sarah Lacey Nicholas Concert Series, the FWBBC Music Department, the college family, and the community unite in “Christmas on Richland” to celebrate the beginning of the Christmas season.