

Lady Flames Volleyball

Flames Drop Final Home Matches

Appalachian Bible College	25	27	25
Free Will Baptist Bible College	15	25	15

There was a great turnout Thursday evening for “Pink Night” at Picirilli Gym to acknowledge breast cancer survivors and solicit donations for breast cancer research. This is an annual event and the Flames’ fans are very supportive.

Despite being swept in three games, the Flames played hard. While games one and three were one-sided, game two was a barn-burner as the Flames came up just short, losing 27-25. In game two, Rachel Burns had a season best 25 digs.

“Overall the girls pushed themselves defensively. (It shows in our digging stats.),” said Coach Amy Walker. “Emily and Christen played hard at the net, frustrating their hitters.”

In addition to Burns’ 25 digs, Emily Whitworth had an impressive night with 12 kills while Christen Pointer finished with nine assists.

Kentucky Christian University	25	25	25
Free Will Baptist Bible College	18	8	6

In the Flames’ final home match, they competed against Kentucky Christian University, the nation’s third-ranked team. FWBBC came out of the gate strong and put up a good fight in game one. But they couldn’t sustain the effort and fell to the Trailblazers in three straight.

“The girls never quit,” said Coach Walker. “I am proud of how they rallied together after Emily went down near the end of the third set.”

Rachel Burns led the Flames with 11 digs. Christen Pointer had six kills and Emily Whitworth six assists.